COMMISSIONERS DECIDE PURCHASE

Five-Ton Truck to be Ordered Through Charleroi Auto Agency

OTHER CARS MAY BE ORDERED

The county commissioners Monday afternoon decided to purchase through A. D. Spencer, of Charleroi, a five-ton G. M. C. truck, for use in road maintenance work. A meeting of the commissioners and controller was held at Charleroi on Saturday. At a meeting the truck question was considered. Last week the commissioners and controller were at Cadiz, Ohio, looking over a truck.

It is understood that at the meeting Saturday the controller advised the solicitation of bids for a truck and that he will not approve any purchase, other than through bids, he costs of the truck being in excess of $100. The consideration for the truck proposed to be bought is $4,154. However the county authorities agree on the make of the truck.

Controller Underwood stated he was in favor of buying a truck, but believed bids for the same should be asked. It is understood a proposition was before the commissioners to secure a Ford car for the engineer's department, to haul the men to different points over the county; Also the purchase of a touring car for the county commissioners. At present an automobile has to be hired often for the engineering department and just as often in trips required to be taken by the commissioners.

The controller submitted a proposition that all join in a petition to the court for the court's approval of the purchase of the truck and automobiles, so that the provision of the controller's act might be evaded.

Attempted Blackmail Charged

Monessen officers are investigating the attempted blackmail of Wyland J. Michaels, an automobile agent. Last week Michaels received a letter threatening exposure of acts of his declared unbecoming to a married man if he failed to leave $300 at an appointed place. The name of C. Chaffin was signed to the letter. H. M. Laley, who also has been known as J. V. Martin was arrested at 541 Donner avenue, but at a hearing this morning he was discharged. However samples of his penmanship were taken. Monday night Mrs. Yaton, the landlady at 541 Donner advised Michaels by letter not to proceed too far with the prosecution.

TESTIMONY IN DIVORCE FILED

Aggrieved Mates Tell Why They Seek Separation-- Infidelity Alleged

LOCAL CASES WILL COME UP

The testimony taken before commissioners in divorce actions were filed Monday. The cases go on the present argument list and will be disposed of this week. Two libels in divorce were also filed.

Roy Trinder and Bessie Smiley Trinder, both of Fallowfield township, had a short courtship and a short married life, according to the testimony filed. They were married on April 6, 1912, after they had known each other two or three weeks. The libellant says that his wife soon tired of married life, seemed dissatisfied and in March of 1913 deserted him and returned to her home. Subsequently he urged her to come back and she did so. She remained, however, but six weeks, and again returned to her parents.

William W. Ford was married to Goldie Miller Ford, on July 6, 1911, at Fairmont, W. Va. The libellant says his wife never treated her marriage seriously; that she continually cursed him and his family. She had a violent temper and on one occasion flew in a rage and burned her marriage certificate. He says she continually taunted him and urged him to get a divorce. He lives at Charleroi.

William Lester Parton, aged 17, is suing Sarah B. Costiot Parton for divorce, complaining they did not get along well and alleging the attention of another man was the cause of trouble.

MAMMONA INQUEST TO BE HELD NEXT FRIDAY

Coroner Heffran to Insert Probe into Weaver Murder of Last Week--Affair Still Seems Shrouded In Mystery

Coroner James T. Heffran announced this morning that the inquest into the killing of Tony Mammoma at Bentleyville last week will be conducted next Friday at the Patterson undertaking rooms in Bentleyville. Mammoma was shot down in cold blood by an unknown as he was at work on the railroad at Weaver. Ever since officers have been working on the case hoping to find a clue which will end in the arrest of the wanted man. So shrouded in mystery does the case seem in spite of the fact that the murderer was seen by several, that authorities do not anticipate much of value in the way of testimony to be offered at the inquest.

VIEWERS WILL ADJUST CLAIMS

Hearing Completed on Third Street Grade Changes Monday

BOARD TO RETURN NEXT WEEK

Damages resulting from the change of grade on Third street were outlined to the Washington county board of viewers, Grant E. Hess, William Wylie and T. S. McCurdy at a meeting in the borough building Monday afternoon. The viewers arranged to come next Monday at which time it is likely adjustments will be made.

All the claims arise from the Third street improvement completed the first of this year. The first part of the improvement was the building of a high concrete wall that divides the street. This was followed by the grading and paving of an "ascending" street and a "descending" street.

Monday about ten property owners appeared to make claim of damages and adjustment will have to be made in each one. Some only request a wall and others the building of a sidewalk.

Herrington and Whalen Birch, who put out from the Slackwater after Mr. Copeland heard calls. Capt. James T. Nutt helped resuscitate the man, whose name was Leroy Day. Others who had a narrow escape were James McKee and Roy Grady of Pittsburgh.

YOUR MAIL

It probably never occurred to you when opening your morning mail with your fork at the dining table, that figuratively you were running your head into a noose. But you were committing an indiscreet act. Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, state commissioner of health, says so in his weekly chat on health and hygiene. Dr. Dixon offers the following:

Do you read your morning mail at the breakfast table? Have you ever used a knife or fork to open your letters? It is not an uncommon practice and yet an uncleanly and dangerous one.

The postoffice is essentially a public utility and it is universally used by all classes of people. A common point of destination may put my lady's note beside a dirty scrawl from the vilest of slums.

Millions of pieces of mail matter are handled. A certain number of these come from people who are suffering from all kinds of diseases, some of them loathsome and infectious.

Stamps and envelopes, contrary to hygiene rules are for convenience sake frequently licked. Despite quarantine precautions mail sometimes comes from houses where cases of communicable disease exists which have not been reported.

Mail bags are not subjected to regular disinfection, and are not so cleaned as to make them safe from the danger of becoming a factor in the transmission of disease.

During the recent epidemic of infantile paralysis many of those working on the disease formed the opinion that it may be carried by a third person. Is it unreasonable to presume that the disease may be carried through the mail?

BOYS AND AUTOMOBILES

Probably an automobile is safer with many a boy at the wheel than it is with a lot of men and probably there is great truth in the argument that there is some discrimination in the law permitting infirm men to drive when a stout youngster of 15 is not. Yet it will take a long time to convince the people generally that the lawmakers did not perform a wise act when they passed that prohibition on boys.

Boys are impulsive and naturally not as dependable as those of more adult years in critical places. They are likely to rush into danger thoughtlessly without regard to a means of getting out, with resultant trouble. Anyhow the law is on the statute books and while it is there it ought to be enforced. And by the way violations are rather conspicuous.

WHAT OTHERS THINK

BABIES DO SURVIVE

The way babies persist in living is amazing. The wonder is that more of them don't die. They are unhappy victims of so much well-meant ignorance. On every hand are cases which make an observer conclude it's difficult to kill a child with kindness. Babies survive all manner of harrowing experiences and this case of a New Jersey victim is in point. The baby took sick one day, evinced decided lassitude and disinclination to play. Toward evening his temperature went up a little so his mother sent for a physician; her family doctor was out of the city. The physician's diagnosis was infantile paralysis and he urged the mother to let him send the child to a hospital where upward of a score of cases were being treated. She demurred, saying she was not convinced her baby was attacked and that she preferred a home quarantine to sending the child away. With the quarantine in effect, the mother cared for her three other children, boys at the irrepressible stage, did her housework and nursed the sufferer. This lasted several weeks, or until her family doctor came home.

An examination by the regular physician brought a disagreement with the first diagnosis; the symptoms were not those of infantile paralysis, he said, but rather indicated an injury to the spine, probably caused by a fall. He then questioned every person who had been in any way responsible for the child's care at the time it took sick, and in cross-examination a servant girl confessed she had dropped the child that day, but had been afraid to tell her mistress!

The quarantine was lifted. For those who prefer not to have the nippy ending left to the imagination it might be well to add that the baby is getting well.—Pittsburg Gazette Times.

FASTING.

A man at Youngstown, O., was an ardent advocate of fasting as a "natural cure." He indulged in occasional short fasts, with apparently good results. Finally he undertook a big cure—a fast of 40 days. After that, he was certain, he would enjoy perfect health.

He succeeded in doing without food for the 40 days, and possibly recovered from what ailed him. But just as he was ready to enter upon the perfect physical and mental life, he found that he couldn't eat at all. He had overdone it. He had lost appetite and digestive power. He dragged on a feeble existence for 20 days, more and then died.

His fate is another warning to the dangers of trusting too implicitly in the anti-food gospel. Almost any good physician will recommend skipping an occasional meal, or even an occasional whole day's meals, for the correction of minor ailments, especially digestive troubles caused by overburdening the stomach. But they will point out that even a moderate degree of starvation has its dangers, and prolonged fasting is almost sure to result in serious weakness or disorder of some kind.

The true remedy is to be found rather in avoiding both fasting and gorging and in keeping to a "properly balanced ration"—right proportion of proteins, fats and carbohydrates, concerning which clear and practical information is easily obtainable.—Erie Dispatch.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"No," he complained, "ye dinna use your faculties of observance. Ye dinna use 'em. For instance—"

Picking up a pot of chemicals of horrible odor, he stuck his finger into it and then into his mouth.

"Taste of it, gentlemen," he commanded, as he passed the pot from student to student.

After each had licked a finger and had felt a rebellion through his whole soul, the old professor laughed in triumph.

"I told ye so!" he shouted. "Ye dinna use your faculties of observation! For if ye had observed ye would ha' seen that the finger which I stuck into the pot was na the finger which I stuck into my mouth!"

Was Good Once.

A certain well known composer now in the full vigor of his established reputation was at one time when he was comparatively unknown engaged in writing the music for a production fathered by two managers who knew exactly what they wanted, in addition to knowing next to nothing of the musical classics. After having burned much midnight oil and worked himself into a state of semicollapse in a vain endeavor to produce a finale which would please them the composer tore up in anger a page of rejected manuscript and in despair took to the theater an entire section of "Faust" to which he had somehow managed to fit the words assigned to him. He played it over, and one of the managers said quite unfeelingly, "Well, Gus, the others were pretty bad, but this one is the roughest of them all." "So?" remarked the weary musician dryly. "It was considered good when Gounod wrote it!"

Then She Felt Better.

To the great relief of the neighbors, the snobbish and unpopular Jones family were moving.

While the furniture was being brought out some difficulty was experienced in removing a pianoforte from an upper room, and some one proposed setting it through a large window and sliding it down.

Then came a suggestion from the Jones' next door neighbor, who had long fostered the deepest enmity toward them, though until now she had attempted to conceal it.

"No," she said acidly, all her pent up bitterness at last showing itself in her tone: "let it come out as it went in—on the installment system!"—London Mail.

As a Police Cashier.

"Ha!" said McSniffert, when he met McDougall. "Did you hear about my brother's new job? He's been appointed cashier at a police station."

"Na!" said McDougall. "I heard nae word of that. Cashier at a police station? An' what does he do at that job?"

"Weel, man, it's like this," answered McSniffert as he made tracks off. "he counts the 'coppers' as they come in."—London Telegraph.

Disappears.

There is a town in England which when you approach it disappears. Seems impossible, doesn't it? But it is quite true. The town is in Norfolk, and its name is Diss. Thus, you see, when you approach it Diss appears.—Pearson's.

More Like It.

"Now they say they can weigh the conscience."

"By the ounce?"

"I imagine by the scruple."—Kansas City Journal.

BEDS IN COLONIAL DAYS.

The Settee, a Link Between Settle and Sofa, Was Sometimes Used.

Toward the close of the seventeenth century the bed increased in importance. A list of the bedchamber furniture of a Salem merchant in 1690 included "1 great cedar bedd, 1 treble bedd of maple, 1 large sack bottom bedd, 6 Cambrict bedd curtains, 2 calico bedd curtains, 8 blanket sheets, 1 white silk bedd curtains."

The settee, which was a link between the settle and the sofa, was sometimes used as a bed. This piece of furniture was both of imported and domestic make. The back and seat were usually in use in turkey work. With the exception of the arms and braces the entire frame was concealed.

The construction of the colonial settee was identical with one type of the renaissance seat. From Italy it passed into France and from France to England. Holland had no part in its development.

From the Italian palace of the sixteenth century to the New England home of the seventeenth was a far-away cry, and yet, barring crude workmanship the colonial bench was a faithful copy of the renaissance design. The Dutch settlers were unfamiliar with this settee, as they also were with the New England settle.—Argonaut.

THE OLD HURDY GURDY.

The early type of hurdy gurdy originated in Germany during the ninth century and under the name of bauren leyer (peasant's lyre) attained great popularity throughout Europe, falling into a decline only at the beginning of the last century. Even today a slightly modernized type of this instrument may be seen upon the streets of the smaller towns of Saroy.

The instrument consisted of a violin-like frame and sounding board, provided with from three to six strings. The music was produced by a small crank actuated wooden wheel, whose resined edge bore against the strings. The two outer strings were keyed in unison and when the wheel was revolved gave forth a bass note which served as a musical background. The remaining strings were attached to keys, by which their tension and their tone might be varied. This adjustment was the only control possessed by the player.

Needless to say, the hurdy gurdy was suited only to the most elementary of selections. While originally much used at fetes and celebrations, it later was used only by itinerant street musicians, a position now occupied by its successor—the hand organ.—Pittsburgh Times.

Earliest Cold Storage.

In Macaulay's essay on "Lord Bacon" he points out that in 1620 the subject of his memoir tried the experiment of stuffing a fowl with snow to prevent it from putrefying and in carrying out the work caught cold, from which he died. Macaulay adds: "In the last letter that he ever wrote, with fingers which, as he said, could not steadily hold a pen, he did not omit to mention that the experiment of the snow had succeeded excellently well." If, however, we turn to nature there are instances in Siberia of mammoths preserved in ice so that their flesh is still eatable from a period probably coeval with the first appearance of man on this globe. If the Romans brought to their banquets the dainties of the known world, had they not some knowledge of cold storage?—London Spectator.

Fat Men Popular in Japan.

In this country when a man of average height takes on girth until his weight runs up to 300 pounds or so his friends have grave doubts about his condition and advise him to diet in order to bring back a slim elegance of figure. In Japan the contrary is true. If a man can carry 300 pounds of flesh with any agility he is of the material from which heroes are manufactured, and if he can work up to the 400 or 475 pound notch and become a wrestler he is in the running for the championship. Wrestling is to the Japanese what boxing is to us and more. The populace goes crazy over it, and the magnates of the big game handle great sums in the way of gate receipts.—Wide World Magazine.

Willing to Be an Ex-Convict.

An attorney and a judge were discussing the apparent lack of ambition on the part of some of the young men of today.

"Why, I know a man," declared the justice, "whose greatest ambition in life is to be an ex-convict."

"You do?" said the lawyer in surprise.

"Yes. He's a lite termner in the penitentiary."—San Francisco Chronicle.

PROF. STEWART FINDS RELIEF FROM CATARRH

Well-Known Instructor of Mathematics in Erie High School Praises Tanlac.

Prof. H. B. Stewart, instructor of mathematics in the Erie High School, who resides at 151 E. 10th Avenue, Erie, Pa., made the following interesting statement regarding the benefits he had derived from Tanlac, the celebrated new permanent, tonic, appetizer and laxative that is now being so widely distributed and distributed in this city and vicinity.

Prof. Stewart said: "I have suffered intensely from both bronchial and nasal catarrh. I also had a severe case of indigestion which caused me equally as much annoyance and inconvenience.

"My symptoms were pains in my abdomen, a distressed feeling after eating, susceptibility to cold, inflamed bronchial tubes and nasal passages, discharges of catarrhal mucus, and an offensive breath.

"On November 29, my attention was attracted to the Tanlac advertisement in the Erie newspapers. I concluded to test the new medicine.

"Within three days' time, after beginning the use of Tanlac, I noticed a marked improvement in my condition. The inflammation has disappeared from my bronchial tubes and nasal passages, my digestion is almost perfect, and I am generally better.

"I recently fell and broke my arm. I lost much strength as a result of this accident. Tanlac has been a great aid in recovering that lost strength."

CRUCIBLE COAL COMPANY MAKING IMPROVEMENTS

Important improvements are in progress at the plant of the Crucible Coal company near Rice's Landing having in view enlarged output and better facilities. A new steel tippie is being erected to take the place of the wooden one which has done service since the plant was started. The company has also completed a building to be used as a hospital. Four new dwellings have just been completed to take care of the increase in the men employed.

The plant now has a capacity of 30,000 tons of coal per month and in time it is expected to more than double this amount. Part of the coal is shipped by boat and part by rail. The town of Crucible is growing rapidly.

Mary Jane Pounds in her testimony against her husband, W. E. Pounds of Washington tells a story of cruel and barbarous treatment, due to drink. She says her husband threatened to burn her up one night. At another time she claims her husband used a blacksnake whip to "trim" her up.

EMPTY PHRASES INSTEAD OF CONCRETE ACTION.

Not once has President Wilson squarely placed before the American people the question which Abraham Lincoln put before the American people in 1860. What is our duty? Not once has he appealed to moral idealism, to the stern enthusiasm of strong men for the right. On the contrary, he has employed every stationary device to lull to sleep our sense of duty, to make us content with words instead of deeds, to make our moral idealism and enthusiasm evaporate in empty phrases instead of being reduced to concrete action.—From the Speech of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Delivered at Lewiston, Me., in Behalf of Charles E. Hughes.

Telling Tariff Points

Let these telling points on tariff and protection in the speech by Charles Evans Hughes, the Republican candidate for President, delivered in the Salt Lake Tabernacle, be fixed permanently in your mind and memory during the remainder of the campaign:

We are desirous of having strong and sure the foundations of our national greatness in this pursuit of competition among the nations which is sure to follow the cessation of the present struggle.

I propose that the Republican party as the national party, according to the constitution of the United States, within the national sphere, shall proceed wherever it is practicable to build up and foster and encourage American enterprise and open the doors wide for honest American achievement.

Then came the Underwood tariff bill itself. What was the result? Enterprise halted and there was a contraction of trade throughout the land, and America, instead of going ahead, stopped. That is what happened. Three hundred thousand were unemployed in the city of New York. There was not a city in this land where the jobless man anxious and able to work did not walk the street. They were fed by our charitable organizations, which were taxed to the utmost limit to provide for those for whom American enterprise could no longer make provision. It was a sad spectacle. Americans have not forgotten it. It is not forgotten here or anywhere. It cannot be forgotten. It is too recent.

If you are going to have the basis for prosperity in this country, if you are going to protect the American wage scale, if you are going to have American enterprise able to meet the competition which will follow the ending of this war, you must have an honestly devised, wisely framed tariff law to protect American industry.

No; the Democratic party will not be saved by the European war. If you would know what our condition will be when that war ends think of what our condition was before that war began if you think these nations are so impoverished that they cannot again turn to work. Those millions of men now fighting are better able to work than ever before in their lives. * * * Their factories are there; their plants are there; they know themselves better than ever before. They are better disciplined, more alert, keener, stronger, better physically, than ever before in the main, and they are ready to turn great national energies into the pursuits of peace to pay their war bills, to produce up to the limit, to send their goods throughout the world.

I propose that we shall study this out, applying a principle that we believe in, and secure intelligently and honestly adequate protection to American industries in every part of this land.

WHY HUGHES IS NEEDED IN THIS TREMENDOUS CRISIS.

Against Mr. Wilson's combination of grace in elocution with facility in action, against his record of words unbacked by deeds, or betrayed by deeds, we set Mr. Hughes' rugged and uncompromising straightforwardness of character and action in every office he has held. We put the man who thinks and speaks directly and whose words have always been made good against the man whose adroit and facile elocution is used to conceal his plans or his want of plans. The next four years may well be years of tremendous national strain. Which of the two men do you, the American people, wish at the helm during these four years—the man who has been actually tried and found wanting or the man whose whole career in public office is a guarantee of his power and good faith? But one answer is possible, and it must be given by the American people through United States.—From the Speech of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Delivered at Lewiston, Me., in Behalf of Charles E. Hughes.

AN OLD PROVERB.

It used to be proverbial that every man (and it is certainly no less true of woman) is either a fool or a physician at forty. This means that every intelligent person must learn so much about caring for his own health that by the time he is forty years of age he can almost be reckoned as a physician.

Why, then, is there so much talk by doctors against "self-medication"? A woman can recognize all ordinary ailments without calling a doctor. If they are ailments distinctive to her sex she generally knows enough to use that greatest of all remedies for such ailments, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and likewise she is familiar with the standard remedies for other diseases.

Stevenson was hurled between the shafts and the horse, and sustained a deep cut in the back of his head. The buggy was badly damaged, but the occupant escaped with a bad fright. The motorcycle was also somewhat damaged.

Why engine trouble

Frankly, there may be seventeen factors contributing at one time or another to "engine trouble." But it's always a safe bet that the greatest offender in the whole militaristic mob is Poor Lubrication. There's one sure way to banish lubrication-troubles: Atlantic Motor Oils.

Here are oils that have done as much toward banishing engine-trouble via better lubrication as Atlantic Gasoline, the accepted standard, has toward increasing power, mileage and general car-happiness.

Atlantic Polarine is commander of the crew of four principal motor oils, being the correct lubricant for eight out of ten cars. In all alternative cases, Atlantic "Light," Atlantic "Medium," or Atlantic "Heavy" is the one to use. Ask your garage-man which.

In actual tests, it has been definitely demonstrated that a properly lubricated motor will yield as much as five additional miles to the gallon of gasoline.

The oldest and largest manufacturers of lubricating oils in the world recommend this combination to you without reservation. They ought to know whereof they speak—and they DO.

Read up on this subject. We have published a handsome and comprehensive book about lubrication. It is free. Ask your garage for it. If they cannot supply you, drop us a postal and the book will be sent you without charge.

JAPAN'S FIRST GLASS.

That observation car would have done credit to any railroad in the world. A Japanese fellow passenger, an official in the Japanese ministry of communications, was amused at our expressions of delight.

"Of course this is all very recent," he explained. "Forty-five years ago there was not a single car nor a single mile of track in the whole of Japan. Why," he laughed, "I can remember the first jerky little trains that were run on the first line to be opened—the one between Tokyo and Yokohama. Glass was a new thing to the Japanese, and there were a great many windows broken and heads bumped during those first few weeks. Passengers persisted in trying to put out their heads without first raising the windows. Finally the glass smashing became so expensive and there were so many complaints over bruised and cut heads that the company was forced to paint a white bar on every window to teach passengers the nature of glass."

Which story we could appreciate, for we had already noticed in the corner of a railroad yard a little old car with white bars painted across the windows. Some of these cars, our companions told us, are still used as third class conveyances on newly opened branch lines, for there are still parts of Japan where the people do not quite understand glass.—Christian Herald.

PACKING A TRUNK.

To pack a trunk first collect everything that is to be put into it. Fold everything as flat as possible. Evening dresses and fancy waists may be put into thin pasteboard boxes, packed in tissue paper and tied with tapes so they won't slip around. These will go on the bottom of the trunk.

Save all the oblong pieces of paper that came home from the laundry to the men's shirts and fold the shirt waists around these. Use stockings and things that will not wrinkle for filling in the small spaces that will happen, even with the most careful packing. Put collars, belts and ribbons into small boxes.

Take folding hangers for dresses and coats. Short lengths of ribbon with a safety pin at one end and a brass ring at the other take up no room at all in a trunk and will be useful for hanging up skirts.

If you have no hat trunk and are obliged to pack your hats in the tray, fill the crowns with tissue paper, place them in position and fasten them there with wide bands of cotton tape held to the side of the trunk with thumb tacks. Keep always in mind that the more tightly the things are packed in the fewer wrinkles you will find at the end of the journey, provided that you have used care in packing.—New York Sun.

Cursing in Korea.

A strange way of cursing is that of the Korean. His ordinary swear word is "oenuma," or "you brute." But the Korean considers himself especially abusive when he calls a person his child or grandchild. When he wants to call somebody down the Korean demands hotly, "Are you not my child? And the angry retort is: "What! I your child? You are my grandchild." Then the first goes a step further and cries, "You are a grandchild of my grandchild!" to which the rejoinder is: "You conceited fellow! Have you forgotten that you are a grandchild of a grandchild of my grandchild?" When their vituperation reaches its climax the people of Chosen at last come to the point of exclaiming, "You grandchild of a dog!"

Feathered Advisers.

A most remarkable superstition of the Kenyahs of Borneo is the consultation of birds. If, for example, a Kenyah has to undertake a long journey he will not risk it without having first consulted the "dakka," a kind of hawk. If the hawk flies with its wings spread out to the right side it is a good sign, but if it goes to the left or flaps its wings, then the journey is not commenced. Next day another trial is made until the hawk gives the sign wanted. Thus the continuation of the journey depends on the flight of the birds.

Riddles.

What is it gives a cold, cures a cold and pays the doctor bill? A draft.

What is the difference between an accepted and a rejected lover? One kisses his misses; the other misses his kisses.

What is the most modest piece of jewelry? A watch, because it always keeps its hands on its face and runs down its own works.

Her Indorsement.

"Yes; he asked me last evening."

"Let me congratulate you. Tommy is all right; he is one of the nicest fellows to whom I have ever been engaged."—Puck.

CADDIES OF THE LINKS.

Their Originals Were Messenger Boys in Old Edinburgh.

Originally the caddy, of the present day golf links appears to have been quite another individual, engaged in another line of a thirty. Caddies in the remote past were messenger boys in old Edinburgh. Gathered around the famous Edinburgh cross, where all important messages were read and many public ceremonies were held—the cross which was the very center of the old city—the caddies in their ragged clothes waited to be employed.

The chief messengers of the city, the leading official persons, the men of learning and of talent, the nobles, the lairds, the clergy—all clustered about the cross during certain hours of the day, and very often some one wished to send a parcel or message to another part of the town, or a stranger to Edinburgh wanted to be directed.

Here was where the caddies were appealed to. These boys might be trusted with any duty with which they were charged. They were veritable street directories. A visitor to the town would often engage a caddy to be wholly at his bidding, as the boy's knowledge of the place was invaluable.

But, unless this visitor were most cautious, he would suddenly discover that his caddy in addition to his vast knowledge of Edinburgh, knew also all about his employer—where he came from, what was his business in Edinburgh, his family connections, his tastes and preferences.—Exchange.

LIVING AEROPLANES.

Wherein Birds Differ From Flying Machines Made by Man.

It would be a mistake to suppose that the bird's wings enable it to fly. If wings spelled flying any of us could attach a pair and soar into the air.

The hollow bones of the birds make light bodies, but they are attached to a rigid backbone, which forms the main feature of the bird's body. This gives the central firmness, and the muscles do the rest. The wings balance their owners, and the tail acts as a rudder for steering. Often enough the bird seems to use its tail as a sort of brake.

It is interesting to compare the bird with the product of man's skill—the aeroplane. To begin with, there is no aeroplane made which copies the up and down motion of the bird's wings, all our machines having fixed wings, or planes.

But naturally man tried to copy the living fliers around him. He made wings of feathers, etc., connected them with his shoulders and legs and found that his muscles could not raise him an inch.

The muscles, or motors, which now drive him through the air are as strong as 200 horses, so no wonder he failed at first. Even the bird, with a body so perfectly formed for flight, has firing muscles equal in weight to all its other muscles put together.—Pearson's Weekly.

Dean Swift and the Cook.

There is a good story about Dean Swift apropos of the value of nerve: overdoing anything. The dean's cook one day overroasted the leg of mutton for dinner, and in consequence she was summoned to the dining room "Cook," said the dean in a pleasant voice, "this leg of mutton is overdone. Take it back and do it less."

"Impossible, your reverence!" exclaimed the cook.

"Well," replied her master, "supposing it had been underdone, you could easily have done it more."

"Then," said the dean, "let this be a lesson to you. If you commit a fault always take care that it is a fault which will admit of a remedy."

Rainbows.

The time of day or the state of weather when a rainbow appears is believed by many people to be an indication of future weather conditions. According to an old rhyme, a rainbow in the morning warns the shepherds to be prepared for rain shortly; an evening rainbow points to fine weather the next day. Sailors believe that a rainbow in the wind is a sure sign of continued wet. If it comes in the opposite quarter the rain will soon stop. Again, if in fair weather a rainbow be seen foul weather will speedily set in, but if the bow appear in foul weather fair weather will be at hand.

On the Contrary.

"What a lot of mail you've got this morning!" exclaimed the poet's wife. "But then, of course, this is your birthday, and those are 'Many happy returns of the day' from all your friends."

"No," said the poet, pushing aside a heap of rejected manuscripts. "These are unhappy returns of the day from the publishers."—New York World.

Not Much.

"There should be a national holiday called junk day, when every house, barn, shed, garage, etc., should be relieved of all its junk."

Between Girls.

"She says she wishes she could see herself as others see her."
